1 PURPOSE AND OBJECTIVES

Consulting and engaging with the community to get feedback on projects or plans is an important part of local government decision-making.

This Submissions Policy and its associated guidelines outline a clear process to ensure the consistent treatment and processing of public submissions and informal feedback to the Queenstown Lakes District Council (QLDC). By doing so, this policy is intended to better inform the community of how QLDC manages these processes. It will also assist in the standardisation and streamlining of these processes within QLDC.

The desired outcome is that QLDC’s approach to processing submissions and feedback is more efficient, consistent, and better understood by the community.

2 SCOPE AND CONTEXT

This policy covers submissions received through the following processes:

- a. Formal consultation undertaken in accordance with the processes set out in the Local Government Act 2002 (LGA) – such as consultation on a Long Term Plan, Annual Plan, a bylaw, or some policies.
- b. Formal consultation undertaken in accordance with other specific legislation (for example the Resource Management Act 1991) – such as consultation on a variation to the Proposed District Plan, or Plan Change to the Operative District Plan.
- c. Submissions received on resource consent applications that are either limited or publicly notified.
- d. Informal community engagement where QLDC seeks feedback or input from the community and stakeholders on a project or plan, outside of any legislative requirements.

This policy does not cover:

- a. Unsolicited feedback provided to Council. This includes comments received on Council social media platforms, comments made in the wider media or non-Council social media platforms, presentation of a petition, or speaking at a Council, Committee or Community Board meeting in public forum or as a deputation.
- b. Responses to formal QLDC research, such as the Quality of Life or Community Insights Survey.
- c. Any submission or feedback from the community on projects listed on the government’s Fast Track Approvals Act.
- d. Emails or phone calls to customer services or individual staff members.
- e. Outgoing submissions to government, written by QLDC on behalf of the community.

When does QLDC consult the community?

Details of when QLDC is required to consult or may choose to voluntarily engage are provided in the Significance & Engagement Policy.<sup>1</sup>

Notifying the opportunity to participate

QLDC will list opportunities to provide formal submissions or informal feedback on its Let’s Talk website.<sup>2</sup> These opportunities will also be promoted/notified to the community through a variety of channels, including, but not limited to local newspapers, radio, social media, digital advertising, letter drop, signage, etc.

Requests for submissions on publicly notified resource consent applications will be listed on the QLDC website, in local newspapers, and any parties considered directly affected will receive notification of the submission period. Limited resource consent applications will also be listed on the website, but only affected parties will receive notification as these are not open to public submissions.

District Plan changes will be notified via local newspapers and listed on the QLDC website.

What is considered a submission vs informal feedback

A submission is an individual or group’s comment on a matter QLDC is formally consulting on<sup>3</sup> through a legislative process. It allows the submitter to:

- a. Share their opinions, observations, and recommendations.

<sup>1</sup> <https://www.qldc.govt.nz/your-council/council-documents/policies/>

<sup>3</sup> Or when formally asking for submissions on a notified resource consent application.

- b. Influence Council decisions.
- c. Speak to their submission at a hearing

Submissions differ from informal feedback which can be provided to QLDC as part of a non-statutory process.

- d. Examples of this include a request for early feedback ahead of developing a proposal for formal consultation, a discrete project that a specific community might be interested in or projects and plans that fall outside of a legislative process.
- e. Informal feedback is processed by the QLDC subject matter expert with support by the communications and engagement team, and considered by elected members in a similar way to a formal submission. The difference is that it is not bound by a legislative process or subject to a public hearing.

3 OBJECTIVES

Clarity for the community

Publishing this policy will help the community better understand how their submissions or feedback will be managed. Examples from previous consultations and engagement have highlighted that submitters may not have a clear understanding of how these processes work. This can result in information requests, or in certain procedures being queried or challenged.

Consistency and efficiency of managing submissions

Making how QLDC deals with submissions and feedback more consistent and fairer. Increased standardisation, and the reduction of case-by-case decision making during processing of submissions and feedback, will also increase the efficiency of the process.

4 POLICY

The following table outlines the core steps in submissions and informal engagement processes. This provides information to the community on what to expect when participating in consultation and engagement with QLDC and why these steps are required. It also provides guidelines for staff to ensure consistent and efficient application of relevant legislation. For detailed information about the statutory requirements for consultation, please refer to the relevant legislation linked below.

What to expect	Requirements
Council approval to consult/take submissions	Yes. A statement of proposal must be adopted by Council and approval given to commence consultation. In the case of a Long Term Plan or Annual Plan the statement of proposal is replaced with a Consultation Document.	District Plan changes and variations: Yes. Council must make a resolution approving that notification to begin on a proposed district plan change or variation. Notified resource consent applications: Yes. An applicant may volunteer for public notification, but sometimes a formal decision under section 95 of the RMA is made by Council that the application must be notified (either public or limited).	Yes. At QLDC, the community and services committee makes a recommendation to the Full Council to approve a draft Reserve Management Plan for consultation.	Yes. The full Council must make a resolution to commence consultation on a proposal for representation. Consultation must begin within 14 working days of making the resolution and occur in the year immediately before the year of a triennial general election (not later than 8 August).	Council approval is not required to begin an informal engagement process.
Public notification	Public notice placed in widely distributed local newspapers (usually Mountain Scene and Wānaka Sun) and on QLDC's website.  Public notification is generally supported by a multi-channel promotional campaign.	District Plan changes and variations, and publicly notified resource consent applications: Public notice placed in local newspapers (usually Mountain Scene and Wānaka Sun). Depending on the scale of the proposal, a public notice may also be placed in the Otago Daily Times and Southland Times. The notification is always published on the QLDC website.	Public notice placed in widely distributed local newspapers (usually Mountain Scene and Wānaka Sun)  Public notification is generally supported by a multi-channel promotional campaign.
